Tucked away in Candia New Hampshire is The Woodsman's Blades museum. Dedicated to the trusty companion of hunters, hikers, hard workers, and your neighbor... we are a tribute to the pocket knives. Our collection celebrates the humble beauty of an everyday carry item, from classic folding knives passed down through generations to finely crafted modern blades built for the wild. Each knife has a story to tell... it could be of campfires, craftsmanship, or the call of the outdoors. Step inside and discover a place where steel meets heritage, and where every blade has earned its edge.

About V&A East >

Knives have been used as weapons, tools and eating utensils since prehistoric times. They symbolize preparedness, strength, and awareness. Each piece in this collection holds its own character, the weight of each one in my hands, the curve of the blade, the marks of craftsmanship that make it unique. Beyond their sharpness, there’s beauty in their precision and meaning in their history.

This collection represents dedication, curiosity, and has my respect for craftsmanship. Each knife has been carefully chosen to be added to my collection. Some for their design, like the pink one with the dragon, others for the story they carry. Together, they form a reflection of my journey as a collector and my appreciation for the artistry and purpose behind every blade.

About the collection

Victoria Argeriou

For me, knives have always meant more than just tools. In a world that can feel unpredictable sometimes, they bring me a sense of security, a reminder to stay alert and ready with my surroundings. Each knife I collect feels like a link to something older and deeper, like a long tradition of craftsmanship, survival, and human ingenuity. Holding one connects me to generations of people who relied on their own hands, skills, and resourcefulness. Collecting them isn't just a hobby to me, it's a way of honoring that history and carrying those values of self reliance and resilience into my own life.
